FICTIONAL TRAINING MATERIAL — All people, organizations, records and events are invented. Not a real case or official record.

Case: Cendana Warehouse / TRAINING-CW-014. Interview date: 15 October 2026. Incident date: 14 October 2026. All wall-clock times are WIB (UTC+7).

Raka, a contract delivery driver, gave this fictional account: "I reached the warehouse at about 20:10. I remember because I had just checked the time on my phone before entering. My phone used automatic network time."

"I was there to collect empty packaging for the next day's return run. Maya had sent instructions in the driver chat. I parked the white delivery van near the loading bay. I wore a navy rain jacket."

"I carried two sealed brown cartons out to the van. I did not open either carton and cannot say what was inside. I thought they were empty packaging because that was the job I had been given."

"The security guard was near the entrance when I arrived. I did not watch where he went afterwards. I left before 21:00, but I cannot give an exact departure time."

This is an authored interview summary, not an audio recording or a signed official statement. The witness has not explained why his later hearing account gives a different arrival time. No independent evidence in this pack establishes who physically carried card DR-17.
